ONGERUP BOWLS CLUB:

Results of our first week of pennants for this season resulted in a good win for the ladies against Gnowangerup, and it was bad luck to the men, who went down to Borden in just the last 3 ends. They were up then someone hit the "Wharfie" button and Borden came good at the end! On Sunday we held our season open day with a 100up event, that's like a scrourgers pairs game, and each game is until someone reaches 100 points. George Hams came out the winner over Darren Baum runner-up. With Barry Ashton the Plate winner. Our day finished with afternoon tea then our President Mick Creagh presented Life Membership badges to both Gordon Ireland and George Johnston, both very long term members and always giving heaps of support to our club. Thank you to both of you. This week the Ladies go over to Tambellup and the Men are at Home against Jerramungup – Men, Remember to bring afternoon tea. Best of luck.

Mound building is underway at Yongergnow!

Our Malleefowl are busy scraping leaves, sticks, and mulch placed in the aviaries into position as they begin creating one of nature's most incredible incubators.

Unlike most birds, Malleefowl do not sit on their eggs. They use a huge mound of soil and decomposing vegetation, where organic material creates heat.

The pair, predominantly the male, carefully manages the mound for months by adding and removing soil and vegetation to keep the egg chamber around 33°C. He can check the temperature by pushing his beak into the mound.

The female searches for food so she can produce an egg every three or so days, with each egg up to 10% of her body weight.

Depending on the season, the male opens the mound to release excess heat, adds soil for insulation, or uses sun-warmed soil to maintain the temperature.

— FACT —
AROUND
33°C

This is the target temperature the male maintains in the egg chamber to ensure the eggs develop successfully.

Come into Yongergnow to learn more about the mound-building process and see what our birds are making for yourself!
